Lawyer and U.S Supreme Court

Once upon a time a mother gave birth, in Brooklyn, to a girl named Ruth Bader Ginsburg. She started at a young age, to not let negativity toward her gender prevent her from making her dreams come true.

Indeed, throughout her school years, as one of the few women in her school and being graduated joint first in her class, Ginsburg, realized which battle she would fight for the rest of her life. Therefore, Ruth Ginsburg gave herself the means, by working and educating herself on all possible subject. Those years, influenced her on being an advocate for gender equality and women's rights. Nevertheless, she continued to climb the ladder, by being a volunteer attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, and then a director and a general counsel of its board in 1970s. Moving on, decades later, President Jimmy Carter appointed her to the U.S Court Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. Thus, her work paid off: Ruth Bader Ginsburg was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1993, and she was the only woman justice. Therefore, she even inspired one of Barack Obama's actions making it easier for employees to win pay discrimination claims.

Finally, to my mind, Ruth Bader Ginsburg, was one of the Icons for equality and women's rights for each gender and even awakened consciousness. Therefore, Ginsburg became an influence in American popular culture and was nicknamed 'The Notorious R.B.G. Ruth Ginsburg embodied the fact that no matter where you come from, your past or gender doesn't define your future. Thus, you can always use your voice to make a change in your life time.
